Parish nursing is a specialized area of nursing that focuses on the health and well-being of individuals and families within a faith-based community. Parish nurses work in a variety of settings, including churches, synagogues, mosques, and other faith-based organizations.

The Parish Nursing Handbook For The New Millennium is a comprehensive guide for parish nurses. It covers all aspects of parish nursing, from the basics of nursing care to the more complex issues of spirituality and faith.

What is Parish Nursing?

Parish nursing is a ministry of the church that provides health care and health education to individuals and families within the faith community. Parish nurses are registered nurses who have received specialized training in parish nursing. They work under the supervision of a physician and are accountable to the pastor or other designated leader of the faith community.

Parish nurses provide a variety of services, including:

* Health screenings and assessments * Health education and counseling *
Case management * Referrals to other health care providers * Spiritual care

Parish nurses work with individuals and families of all ages and backgrounds. They provide care to those who are healthy as well as those who are ill or injured. Parish nurses also work with the faith community to promote health and well-being.

The Role of the Parish Nurse

The parish nurse is a key member of the health care team. They work closely with physicians, other health care providers, and the faith community to provide comprehensive care to individuals and families.

Parish nurses have a unique role to play in the health care system. They are able to provide care that is both holistic and person-centered. Parish nurses are also able to provide spiritual care that can help individuals and families cope with illness and other challenges.
